On the internet we can never be sure who is the person that we are talking to in our electronic communication, even if we can see their photos or see them on the camera. With this ways many slings take advantage of this fact and give fake information especially about their age and they start conversations with their possible victims with the aim to become friends and obtain as much information as they can (such as where they live their interesting their hobbies their sexual preferences and many more).

We must be aware that anyone with a fake name and fake information can observe or take part in our conversations.

It is common for children to make accusations that in the middle of such conversations they have been urged from unknown people to have a meeting in real life. In many countries abroad they have been occurred many incidents of pedophiles and child pornography or they have been lured by malicious unknown persons whom they have met in those websites.

Those abusers know very well how to handle emotional and psychologically the teenagers whilst they are described as extremely patient as the cat fishing, can last for a long time from hours or even years. Their ultimate aim is the sexual advantage and the abuse of children.

One to two children chat with unknown people on the internet. One to five children will go on and meet those people and though only three to ten parents are worried about their children's communications on the internet with unknown people.
