

MICHEAL

by Odysseas Pneumatikos

Micheal Phelps was the son of Bob Phelps, a rich businessman and manager of a successful oil company in Texas. Bob died only a few months before the start of the play. After Bob's death, his brother, Ronaldo, became the manager of the company himself and married Bob's widow, Marilyn Monroe. Young Micheal was worried about the situation. He thought Ronaldo killed his father in order to become the manager of the company himself. One night Micheal saw his dead father's ghost that told him that he was murdered by Ronaldo. The ghost made Micheal promise to take revenge for his murder and Micheal agreed to kill Ronaldo. However, young Micheal could not make up his mind to do it, but Ronaldo understood what Micheal wanted to do. For that reason, Ronaldo put poison in Micheal's wine. As the poison took effect on Micheal, Marilyn Monroe drank from her son's glass, that was the poisoned wine Ronaldo had prepared. When Micheal saw that his mother was dying, too, he became furious. He took his gun and killed Ronaldo.