

What a dilemma!

by John Arsenis

Dimus Smith was the son of John Smith, a rich business man and manager of a successful computer company who died only a few months before the start of the play. After John's Smith death, his brother, Antony Smith, became the manager of the company himself and married John's Smith widow, Trinina. Young Dimus was worried about the situation. He thought Antony killed his father in order to become manager of the company himself. One night Dimus saw his dead father's ghost, who told him that Antony indeed murdered him.
