A map of the era

Our original idea

“The birth of European concept” can be applied to any class of language, history, art or civil education.

Our participation in the project will contain activities, presentations and exhibitions that can give our students and partners the chance to elaborate any elements related to the Greek origins of Europe, like language, art and architecture apart from the main topic concerning the Persian wars and the impact of their results upon history.

(e.g. Our students will take part in a class of history or art, make a presentation at the Marathon Museum and give short speeches in English about the battle of Marathon and its historical significance).

Definition of all topics

- ✓ Italy: Leonardo da Vinci,
Art & Science
- ✓ Greece: The birth of democracy,
Wealth & Civilization
- ✓ Ireland: The Irish Golden Age
- ✓ Turkey: The Gok Turks
- ✓ Spain: Are we fit for the future?

"The Birth of Democracy, Wealth & Civilization"

We finally felt we had to expand the limits of our topic to the above, after our partners' kind suggestion that we should think it over as there was a lot more to present in a city like Athens, the cradle of Democracy, which forms one of the main pillars of the current European identity...
