Legend of the devil's rock.

Once upon a time, near Jasło, there lived three devils. Their life was very good because there wasn't any churches near their lair.

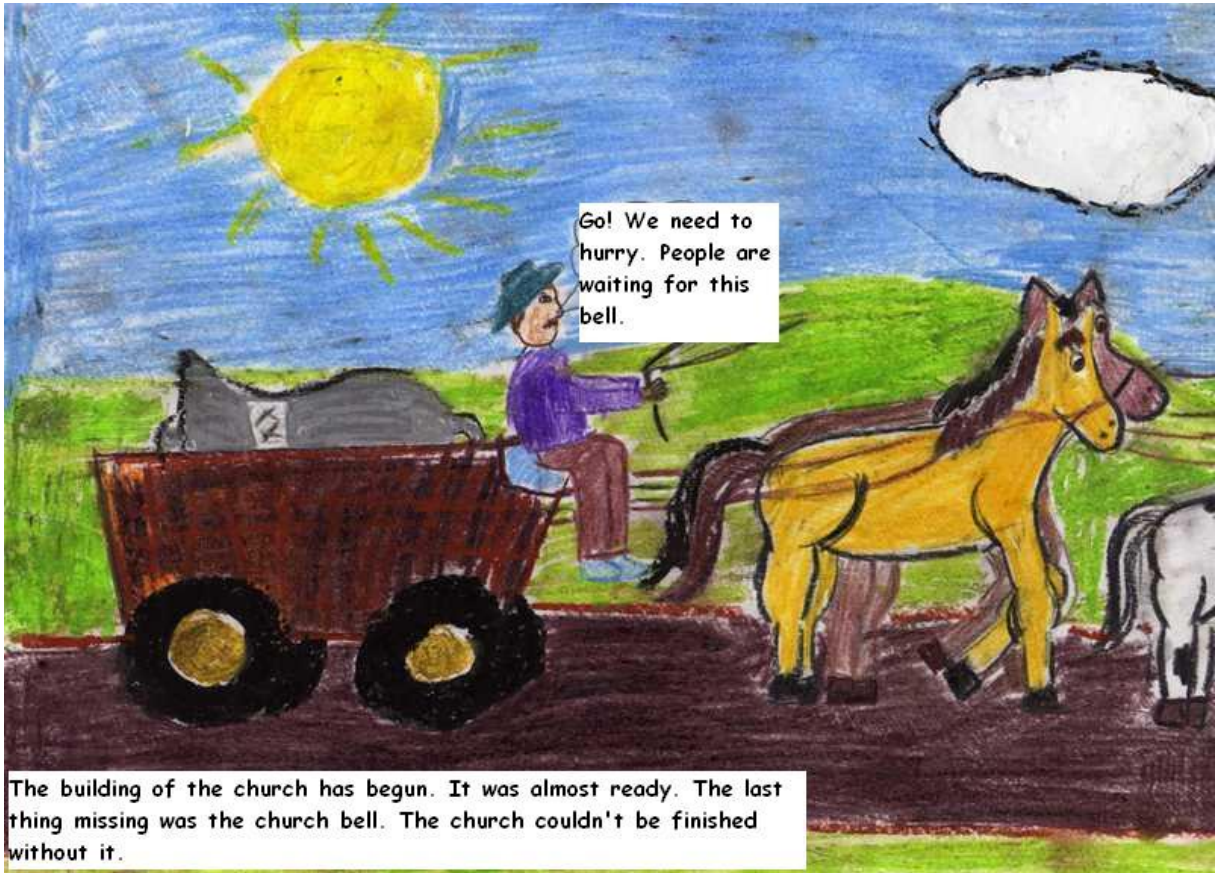

People were very happy because they have gathered all the materials and they could finally start building the church.

Look! The last wagons have arrived.

The devils finally figured out how they were going to destroy the church. One of the devils found a huge rock and started rolling it up the hill.

The building of the church has begun. It was almost ready. The last thing missing was the church bell. The church couldn't be finished without it.

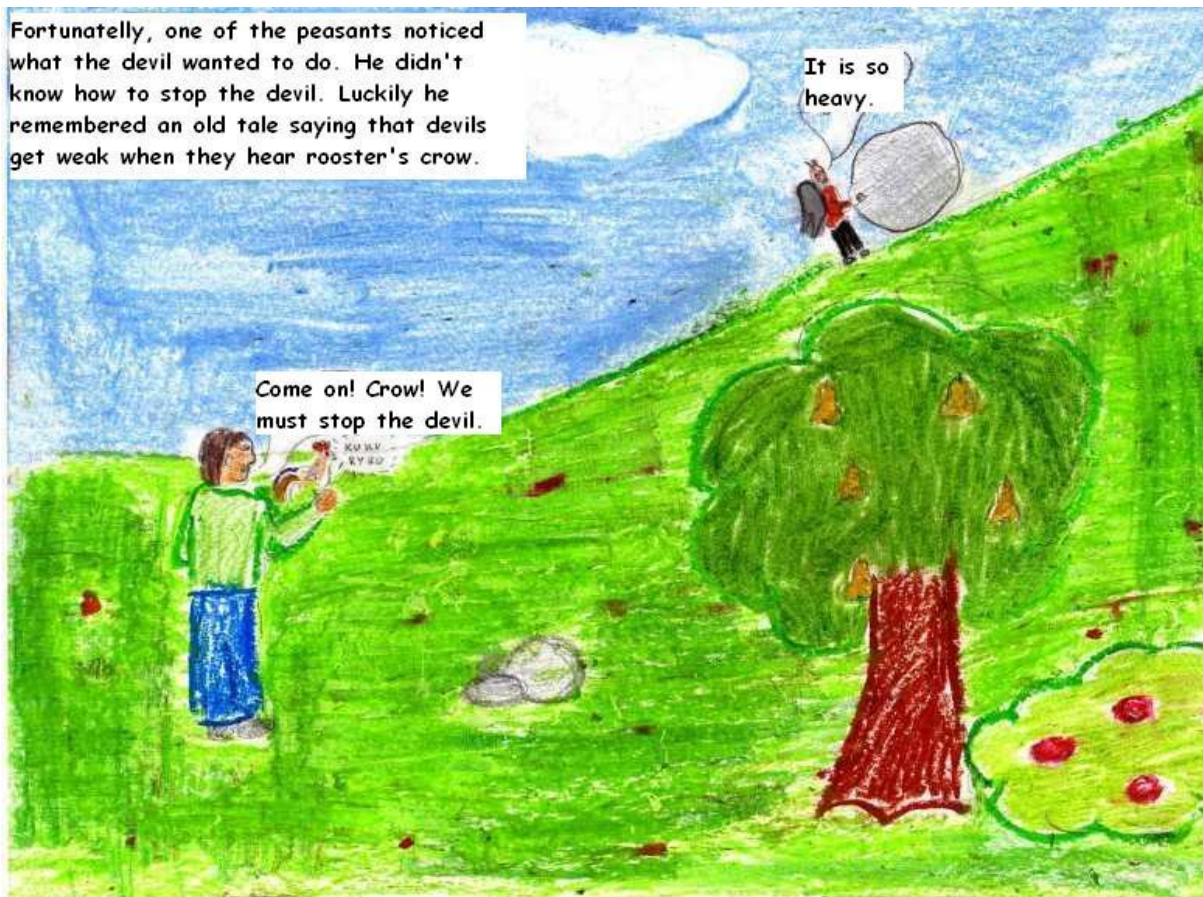

I will let the rock down the hill and it will crush the church.

Fortunately, one of the peasants noticed what the devil wanted to do. He didn't know how to stop the devil. Luckily he remembered an old tale saying that devils get weak when they hear rooster's crow.

It is so heavy.

Come on! Crow! We must stop the devil.

Oh no! I have lost my power. I can't move the rock now. We are doomed.
