The Clock Tower of Psalimani

The Psalimani Clock Tower is a famous landmark made of stone. It was built in 1840 just before the 2nd world war. It is also known as 'the Clock in the Egg' because it was placed in the center of an egg-shaped green space. In 1967 the clock tower became famous because it was used as a landmark on the popular Greek comedy 'Aliki in the Navy'.

In the streets there are many shops and there are old beautiful houses with bougainvilleas and many cats. In the centre there are shops with souvenirs and shops with clothes and many other things.

My Country

- I live in Greece. It is one of the oldest countries in the world. A lot of tourists visit Athens every year. They like to go to the Acropolis which is one of the top attractions. They also like going to Plaka. It is a neighbourhood at the foot of the Acropolis. There they can taste traditional dishes. The weather is usually hot and tourists can walk around this picturesque area. Maria Giatra

The Greek Football League

The Ancient Greeks played many ball games. One of them was known as "ἐπισκυρίος" (Episkyros). In the modern times, the first Greek teams were founded by the Greeks of Smyrna (Asia Minor). The first league of professional football in Greece was officially established as in 1927. Today, the Greek Super league has 16 clubs and the winner of the league becomes the Champion of Greece. The teams with the most national championships is Olympiakos, who have won 42 times, Panathinaikos with 20 titles and AEK with 11 titles.
