Thor is looking around himself shockingly with an axe in his left hand. There is no one in front of him. Suddenly, they all disappear. A muffled sound is heard somewhere. It keeps getting bigger and closer. The lights of the wands of the wizards had made a small light in that dark place. But the wind picks up, thunder rolls and it starts to rain heavily. The owner of the muffled voice, who looked like a short, white-bearded wise man, slowly approached Thor. The voice said some unintelligible word and suddenly Thor saw a vast plain where a battle was taking place. The battle involved many incredible creatures that had unusually large bodies and small heads. Above them flew birds of unusual size with long beaks. Looking more closely, he saw that it was not an ordinary battle, but a projection of his childhood memories, the battle when his brothers were taken prisoner. The atmosphere was suddenly illuminated. And the king of the jungle appeared before Thor. He gave advice to Thor and left again. Thor, took one of the little creatures there and took him to where he lived. Thor, tied a chain to the foot of the little creature. And he kept this little creature where he lived to serve him and family. After a while, he noticed that the creature was growing unusually fast. He was afraid that the little creature would grow up. Because he thought that if the little creature got bigger, it wouldn't want to serve them. While Thor was fighting these monsters, suddenly weather thundered. The weather, which worsened with the rain, made Thor feel like he was going to lose. He had a very challenging battle here. But not physically, but rather mentally. Thor, however, knew what he was doing and for whom he was doing it.

Unfortunately these monsters have grown up and Thor was confused. These monsters surrounding him had both increased in number and become more powerful. Then, all of a sudden, five men with moustaches and large builds came. They had arrows in their hands. They want to kill the creature with arrows. However, Thor don't allow them to kill the creature, although he fear that it would grow.

Something inside him tells him to have trust in that little creature. And he is right. That little creature transforms into a well-built fighter ready to confront the other monsters. He is on Thor's side. The creature- fighter says some unintelligible words to the five men and altogether take a place. Both armies are ready. The final battle is about to start. If Thor's small army wins, his brothers will be released. That's what the king of the jungle had revealed to Thor. The white-bearded wise man suddenly appears and leads the battle whispering magic words. Thunders, heavy rain and arrows fill the dark sky. Eerie voices prevail... the ground opens and dead people come from the Underworld. It will be THE BATTLE !
