

Travelling with colors by Vera Ivanovich

You were deep in the Northern mountain

The trees were covered in white snow

So were the tops of the mountains.

You were travelling south

You wanted to see the Sea.

As you were going

The trees turned to green

Suddenly you saw endless plains,

But you didn't stop,

You wanted to see the Sea

And you kept going on,

Travelling South.

You were floating on the huge rivers

Then you walked through the desert,

But you didn't stop,

You wanted to see the Sea.

There it was,

Deep and blue,

The waves were playing under the sun

And you were running

Then you were lost in the blue of the sea

As you were lost in the gold of the sand

As you were lost in the green of the plains

As you were lost in the white of the snow

But you kept going on,

Because you wanted to see the Sea.
