The image displays the Pixton comic creator interface. At the top, there are navigation tabs: BACKGROUND (red), CHARACTERS (purple), FOCUS (blue), WORDS (green), FACES (olive), and ACTIONS (brown). Below these is a search bar labeled "Find a Background" with a paw print icon. Underneath the search bar are category filters: home, school, city, inside, outdoors, and scifi. A grid of 30 background thumbnails is shown, with the first one selected and marked with a red checkmark. To the left of the grid is a vertical sidebar with four comic panels, each showing two characters and speech bubbles. The main preview area on the right shows a comic panel with two female characters. The character on the left has a speech bubble that says "Που πας;". The character on the right has a speech bubble that says "Πάω λίγο στο κυλικείο.".

The image shows a software interface for creating a comic strip. At the top, there's a header with the text "test6" and two buttons: "RATE THIS COMIC" and "DONE ✓". Below the header is a navigation bar with six tabs: "BACKGROUND", "CHARACTERS", "FOCUS", "WORDS", "FACES", and "ACTIONS".

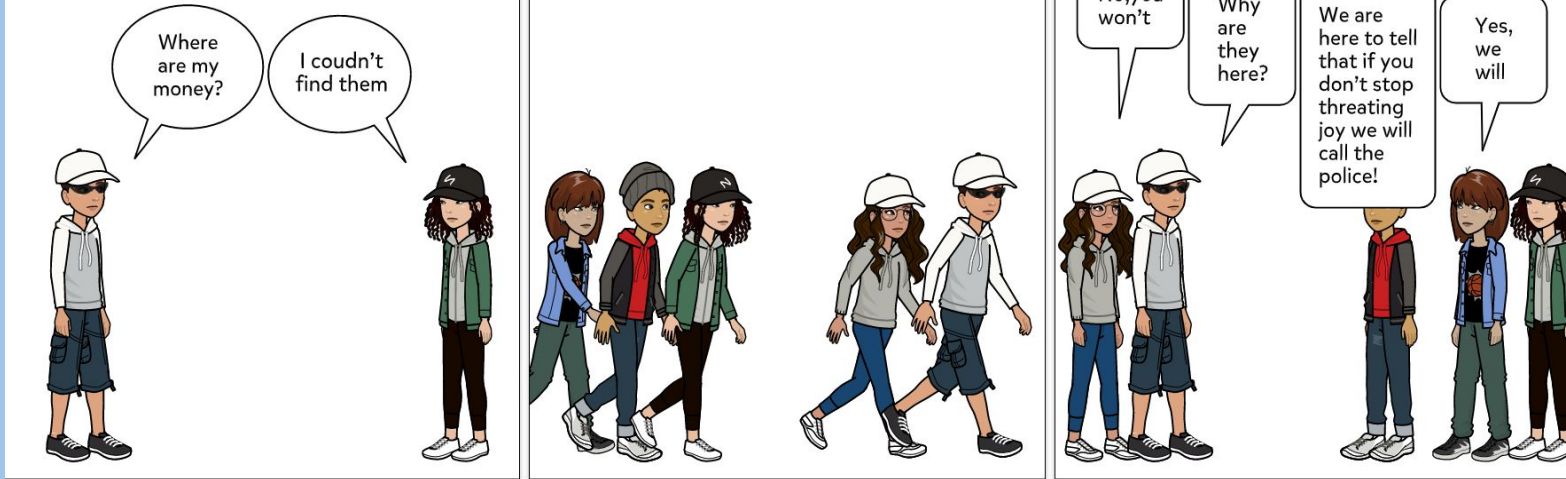

The main workspace is divided into three vertical panels. The left panel shows a sequence of three comic panels, each with a character and a speech bubble. The middle panel is a text input area for the selected character, "Ale". It has a dropdown menu with options: "Speech", "Thought", "Shout", and "Whisper". The text "γεια" is entered in the input field, and a character count "388 characters left" is shown. Below the input field is a keyboard with various characters, including accents and special characters. The right panel shows the comic strip in progress, with a male character on the left and a female character on the right. The male character has a speech bubble saying "γεια" (hello), and the female character has a thought bubble saying "καλημέρα" (good morning).

At the bottom right, there is a yellow question mark icon.
