

HUMAN RIGHTS DAY

- Hand out t-shirts and other gear: If you have the funds, buy t-shirts, sunglasses, or other stationery about human rights to give to your classmates.
- Write an article in your school's newspaper: School newspapers can be a great place to talk about the importance of human rights around the world. Also, we can organize a competition about the best essay and give the winner an award.
- Set up a free expression wall: Create a piece of paper and encourage your friends to write about what human rights mean to them and help them to understand completely the meaning of human rights.

- Make a viral video about human rights day: Film your own video to celebrate human rights and put the video online.
- Start a campaign: Encourage your friends to change their profile pictures to an individualized Human Rights Day banner and make leaflets and give them to people on the road.
- Make a speech competition so that all students have the opportunity to express their ideas about human rights
