- Griechenland, offiziell die Hellenische Republik und seit der Antike als Hellas (Ελλάς) bekannt, ist ein bemerkenswertes Land.

Griechenland liegt am Schnittpunkt von Europa, Asien und Afrika.

80% des Landes bestehen aus Bergen oder
Hügeln.

Außerdem hat es 16.000 Kilometer Küste und etwa 6.000 Inseln.

Griechenland ist stolz auf seine lange Geschichte.

Geburtsort von Demokratie, Philosophie,
Olympischen Spielen, Literatur, Geschichtsschreibung, Politikwissenschaft, Tragödie und Komödie.

Es gilt als die Wiege der westlichen Zivilisation.

Die Insel Rhodos im Dodekanes

Rhodos ist die flächenmäßig größte der Dodekanes-Inseln und auch die viertgrößte Insel Griechenlands.

Sie ist bekannt für die mittelalterliche Altstadt. Auch war weltweit sehr berühmt für den Koloss von Rhodos, eines der Sieben Weltwunder der Antike.

UNSERE STADT : Rhodos

- Rhodos ist eine Stadt an der Nordspitze der Insel Rhodos.
- Es wurde 408 v. Chr. gegründet.

World Heritage Site of UNESCO since 1988

MEDIEVAL CITY

An integral part of the modern city is the Medieval City, which in 1988 was designated by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site. It is a mixture of different architectures from various historical periods dominated by the period when the Order of St. John of Jerusalem occupied Rhodes and the Ottoman period.

Approximately 10,000 residents live and work in this well-preserved city. It is the focal point of interest of all visitors of the island and offers the best services in the sectors of trade, food and entertainment.

Medieval buildings reminiscent of castles, narrow streets, mosques, fountains, quiet squares, transport the visitor to another time. Massive walls enclose the city and around the walls are gates dating back to the Knights' Period. A walk along these impressive walls gives one the opportunity to assess this inconceivable for that time fortification work of the Medieval City and to also enjoy the magnificent panoramic view of the old and new city of Rhodes.

The perfectly preserved Medieval Moat hosts the Mediaeval theatre where many cultural events are held in the summer.

Upon entering through the Eleftheria (Liberty) Gate to Smti Square and Argyrakastro Square, the visitor encounters the ruins of the Temple of Aphrodite, the Folklore Museum, the Historical and Archaeological Museum, the Panagia Tou Kastros and the Archaeological Museum.

The quarters of the various nationalities of the Knights of St. John are located on the pebble paved Avenue of Knights, at the beginning of the Avenue at Museum Square where the Knights' Hospital is located, which currently houses the Archaeological Museum.

Just across is the Church of the Panagia Tou Kastros (17th century AD), which in Byzantine times operated as the Metropolitan Church of Orthodox Christians and later, when the Knights captured Rhodes, it operated as a Catholic Church.

At the end of the Avenue of Knights, at Kleivoulos Square, rises the magnificent Palace of the Grand Master. This was originally a Byzantine fortress (7th century AD), which later (at the beginning of the 14th century) housed the administrative center of the Order of Knights. In 1856 it was destroyed by an explosion and at the end of the 1930s, during the Italian occupation, it was rebuilt to be used as the home of the Italian Commander.

The ground level houses two large exhibits on the City of Rhodes. The first exhibit concerns the period from its founding in 408 BC until the period of the Roman Empire and the second concerns the period from the 4th century AD until the Ottoman occupation in 1522 AD.

After Orpheus Road, where the Clock Tower stands, the Mosque of Saleiman the Magnificent (built initially at the beginning of the 16th century during Saleiman's reign and rebuilt in 1880) and the Ottoman Library is the commercial street of Saleiman, the city's main market since ancient times.

The cross streets lead to churches, such as the Church of Agios Fanourios (13th century church with marbled) and squares such as Dories Square with the Bektash Mosque and Arsenos Square with the Mosque of Mustafa Pasha as well as the Turkish Baths, built in the 16th century, which are of special interest.

Solarious street ends at the popular Ippokratous square near the Traikouli (Mariano) Gate, the largest and most beautiful gate of the knights era, dominated by the Knight's Building of Kastellania.

Next Astrotosou Street leads to the Square of the Jewish Martyr, the centre of the old Jewish Quarter, which is where the "Admiralty", the Jewish Synagogue, the Panagia Tou Bourgas and the Knight's Guesthouse of Agia Ekaterini are located.
